

Susan Kay Kiles

December 26, 1949 - November 13, 2019

Susan Kay Kiles, age 69, passed away November 13, 2019 in Salt Lake City, Utah. She was born in the wake of Christmas on December 26, 1949 in Pauls Valley, Oklahoma to Irene Walker Kiles and Kermit Kiles. Susan entered this world with a fiercely strong spirit and gifted mind. At the age of sixteen she entered Oklahoma University and earned her Bachelor's degree in history. While there, she would become a lifelong fan of OU football, even naming her last dog Sooner in tribute. Susan was a jack of all trades and pursued many endeavors over the years while acquiring a life of skills and stories. She was a champion of social causes affecting any population with a voice less heard, and was never timid to speak her mind. Susan's main passion in life was astrology, and after fifty years of practice, she had gained an encyclopedic knowledge of the subject. She also loved travel, having new experiences, and meeting new people. She lived in multiple states and took road trips through most of the ones she didn't. Susan will be remembered as a woman of wit who always left a memorable impression with those she met, and she will be missed dearly.

Survived by her siblings: Rosemary and Becky, and her daughter: Rachel.

Comments

“ What a nice obituary--we all need to remember Susan's good qualities and gifts. One of her gifts was Rachel. I remember the day Rachel was born. Susan asked me to be there at the University hospital and I was. There was Dan and Susan and me. It had been a high risk pregnancy because of Susan's age and the fact that she had only one kidney. Things were proceeding as expected and then the doctors noticed that the infant was going into distress. They quickly prepared for a cesarean and Dan and I had to step out and watch through a glass window. It was very scary--I can only imagine what it was for Susan. Suddenly the baby was born naturally. Hooray! All was well. Susan was very happy with the baby she wanted so much.

Linda Clark - November 19, 2019 at 10:56 AM